

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

TO THE PUBLIC.

No new Publication awakens lefs curiofity than a... volume of Mifcellaneous Poems by an unknown Author. Under this difadvantage, (among many difcouragements more which need not be named.) the following trifles are offered to the world;--yet if they' have merit they cannot be entirely overlooked; if shey have none they will be juftly neglected.

THE WANDEREE OF SWITZERLAND, the first, and longest effay in this collection, has a peculiar, claim on the liberality of criticism. Whatever its fate or its character may be, it is neither written in the spirit, nor after the manner of any preceding Poet. An heroic subject is celebrated in a lyric measure, on a dramatic plan. To unite with the majesty of epic fong, the fire, rapidity and compression of the ode, and give to both the grace and variety of earneft impaffioned conversation, would be an enlargement of the boundaries of Parnaffus. In fuch an adventure, fuccefs would be immortality; and failure itfelf, in the prefent inftance, is confectrated by the boldmefa of thefirst attempt. Under these sircumfances, THE WAN-. DERER OF SWITZERLAND will be hospitably received by every lover of the Musses: and though the Poet may have been as unfortunate as his Hero, the infiremittees of both will be forgiven for the courage which: cach has difplayed. The Historical facts alluded to: in this narrative may be found in the Supplement to Case's Travels, and in Planta's History of the Helvatia Confederacy.

It is proper to observe, that many of the fmaller... Fieces have already appeared in the PORTICAL REGISTICE, and other periodical publications: the favour which a few of these anosymously obtained gave birth ... to the prefeat volume,

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND,

A Poem.

IN SIX PARTS.

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND.

Part I.

A WANDERER of SWITZERLAND and bis Family, confifting of bis Wife, bis Daughter and her young Children, emigrating from their Country, in confequence of its fubjugation by the French, in 1798, arrive at the Cottage of A SHEPHERIN, beyond the frontiers, where they are hofpitably entertained

Sbepherd. "WANDERER! whither doft thou roam? Weary Wanderer, old and grey! Wherefore haft thou left thine home, In the funfet of thy day?"

Wanderer. "In the funfet of my day, Stranger! I have loft my home: Weary, wandering, old and grey, Therefore, therefore do I roam.

> Here mine arms a Wife enfold, Fainting in their weak embrace; There my daughter's charms, behold,. Withering in that widow'd face.

There her infants, "O their Sire, Worthy of the race of TELL, In the battle's fierceft fire, —In his country's battle,—fell !"

Shep. "SwITZERLAND then gave thee birth ?" Wand. "Aye,—'twas SWITZERLAND of yore; But, degraded fpot of earth ! Thou art SWITZERLAND no more. • O'er thy mountains, flink in blood, Are the waves of ruin hurl'd; Like the waters of the flood, Rolling round a buried world."

Shep. "Yet will Time the deluge flop; Then may SWITZERLAND be bleft: On ST. GOTHARD's* hoary top, Shall the Ark of Freedom reft,"

Wand. "No!—Irreparably loft, On the day that made us flaves, Freedom's Ark, by tempefts toft, Founder'd in the fwallowing waves."

 ST. GOTHARD is the name of the higheft Mountain in the Canton of URI, the birthplace of Swifs Independence.

Shep.

"Welcome, Wanderer as thou art, All my bleffings to partake ; Yet thrice-welcome to my heart, For thine injured country's fake.

On the weftern hills afar, Evening lingers with delight, While fhe views her favourite ftar, Brightening on the brow of night.

Here, tho' lowly be my lot, Enter freely, freely fhare All the comforts of my cot, Humble fhelter, homely fare.

Spoufe ! I bring a fuffering gueft, With his family of grief; Bid the weary pilgrims reft, Yield, O yield them fweet relief." Shep.'s Wife. "I will yield them fweet relief: Weary Pilgrims! welcome here; Welcome, family of grief! Welcome to my warmeft cheer."

- Wand. " If the prayers of broken hearts Rife acceptable above, Pitying Heaven will take our parts; Helping Heaven reward your love."
- Shep. "Hafte, recruit the failing fire, High the winter-faggots raife:
 Sed the crackling flames afpire;
 O how cheerfully they blaze!

Mourners! now forget your cares, And till fupper-board be crown'd, Clofely draw your fire-fide chairs; Form the dear domeftic round."

- Wand. "Hoft ! thy finiling daughters bring, Bring those roly lads of thine; Let them mingle in the ring, With these poor loft babes of mine."
- Shep. "Join the ring, my girls and boys; This enchanting circle, this Binds the focial loves and joys; "Tis the fairy-ring of blifs!"
- Wand. "O ye loves and joys! that foort In the fairy-ring of blifs, Oft with me ye held your court; I had once an home like this!

Bountiful my former lot As my native-country's rills; The foundations of my cot Were her everlaiting hills.

OF SWITZERLAND.

But those freams no longer pour Rich abundance round my lands; And my father's cot no more On my father's mountain flands.

By an hundred winters piled, When the Glaciers,* dark with death, Hang o'er precipices wild, Hang,—fulpended by a breath:

If a pulfe but throb alarm, Dafh'd down dreadful in a trice, --For a pulfe will break the charm,---Headlong rolls the rock of ice :

More properly the AVALANCHERS; immenfe accumulations of ice and frow, balanced on the verge of the mountains, in fuch fullie fufpence, that in the opinion of the natives, the tread of the traveller may bring them down in defruction upon bim. The GLACIERS are more permanent maffes of ice, and formed rather in the valies than on the fummits of the Alfo.

Struck with horror ftiff and pale, When the chaos breaks on high, All that view it from the vale, All that hear it coming, die :---

In a day and hour accurft, O'er the wretched land of TELL, Thus the Gallic ruin burft, Thus the Gallic glacier fell!"

Shep. "Hufh that melancholy ftrain; Wipe those unavailing tears :" Wand. "Nay,-permit me to complain; 'Tis the privilege of years;

> 'Tis the privilege of woe, Thus her anguish to impart : And the tears that freely flow Ease the agonizing heart."

Shep. "Yet fufpend thy griefs awhile :
See the plenteous table crown'd;
And my wife's endearing fmile
Beams a rofy welcome round.

Cheefe from mountain-dairies preft, Wholefome herbs, nutritious roots, Honey from the wild-bee's neft, Cheering wine, and ripen'd fruits :

Thefe, with foul-fuftaining bread, My paternal fields afford; On fuch fare our fathers fed;— Hoary Pilgrim! blefs the board."

END OF THE FIRST PART.

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND:

Part II.

After fupper, THE WANDERER, at the defire of his Hoft, relates the forrows and fufferings of his Country, during the invation and conqueft of it by the French, in connection with his own flory.

Sbep. "WANDERER! bow'd with griefs and years,

Wanderer, with the cheek fo pale ! O give language to those tears; Tell their melancholy tale."

Wand. "Stranger-friend! the tears that flow Down the channels of this cheek, Tell a myftery of woe,

Which no human tongue can fpeak.

THE WANDERER, &c. 21.

Not the pangs of "Hope deferr'd" My tormented bofom tear : ---On that tomb of Hope interr'd Scowls the fpectre of Defpair.

---Where the Alpine fummits rife, Height o'er height flupendous hurl'd; Like the pillars of the fkies, Like the ramparts of the world :

Born in Freedom's eagle neft, Rock'd by whirlwinds in their rage, Nurfed at Freedom's ftormy breaft, Lived my Sires from age to age.

High o'er UNDERWALDEN'S vale, Where the foreft fronts the morn ; Whence the boundlefs eye might fail O'er a fea of mountains borne :

h

There my little native cot Peep'd upon my father's farm --O it was a happy fpot, Rich in every rural charm !

There my life, a filent ftream, Glid along, yet feem'd at reft; Lovely as an infant's dream On the waking mother's breaft.

Till the form that wreck'd the world, In its horrible career, Into hopelefs ruin hurl'd All this aching heart held dear.

On the princely towers of BERNE Fell the Gallic thunder-ftroke; To the lake of poor LUCERNE, All fubmitted to the yoke. REDING then his ftandard raifed, Drew his fword on BRUNNEN's plain;* But in vain his banner blazed, REDING drew his fword in vain.

Where our conquering fathers died; Where their awful bones repole; Thrice the battle's fate he tried, Thrice o'erthrew his country's foes †

BRUNNEN, at the foot of the mountains, on the borders of the Lake of URI, where the first Swift Patriots, WALTER FURST of URI, WERNER STAUFFACHER of SCHWITZ, and ARNOLD OF MELCHTHAL in UNDERWALDEN, conspired against the tyranny of AUSTRIA, in 1307, again in 1798 beeame the feat of the Diet of these three fores Cantons.

+ On the plains of MORGARTHEN, where the Stuifs gained their first decifive wittory over the force of Austria, and thereby secured the independence of their country, ALLOTS REDING, at the bead of the troops of the little Cantous, URI, SCHWITZ and UNDERWALDEN, repeatedly repulsed the invading ermy of FRANCE.

Happy then were those who fell, Fighting on their fathers' graves ! Wretched those who lived to tell Treachery made the victors flaves.*

Thus my country's life retired, Slowly driven from part to part; UNDERWALDEN laft expired, UNDERWALDEN was the heart.†

• By the refifance of these small Cantons, the French General SHAWEMBOURG was compelled to respect their independence, and gave them a folemn pledge to that purport: but no fooner had they difarmed, on the faith of this engagement, than the Enemy came fuddenly upon them with an immense force; and with threats of extermination compelled them to take the eivic oath to the new Confliction, imposed upon all SWITZER-LAND.

† The inhabitants of the lower Valley of UNDERWALDEN alone refifted the French message, which required submission to the New Constitution, and the immediate surrender, alive or dead, of nine of their Leaders. When the demand, accom-

OF SWITZERLAND.

In the valley of their birth, Where our guardian mountains fland; In the eye of heaven and earth, Met the warriors of our land.

Like their Sires in olden time, Arm'd they met in ftern debate; While in every breaft fublime Glow'd the SPIRIT OF THE STATE.

GALLIA's menace fired their blood; With one heart and voice they rofe: Hand in hand the heroes flood, And defied their faithlefs focs.

panied by a menace of definuction, was read in the Affembly of the Diffrict, all the men of the walley, fifteen hundred in number, took up arms, and devoted themfelves to perifs in the vuins of their Country.

Then to heaven, in calm defpair, As they turn'd the tearlefs eye, By their country's wrongs they fware With their country's rights to die.

ALBERT from the council came; (My poor daughter was his wife; All the valley loved his name; ALBERT was my ftaff of life!)

From the council-field he came; All his noble vifage burn'd; At his look I caught the flame; At his voice my youth return'd.

Fire from heaven my heart renew'd; Vigour beat thro' every vein; All the powers, that age had hew'd, Started into ftrength again. Sudden from my couch I fprang, Every limb to life reftored; With the bound my cottage rang, As I fnatch'd my fathers' fword.

This the weapon they did wield, On MORGARTHEN's dreadful day; And thro' SEMPACH's iron field, This the ploughfhare of their way.*

Then, my Spoufe ! in vain thy fears Strove my fury to reftrain; O my Daughter ! all thy tears, All thy children's were in vain.

• At the battle of SEMPACH, the Auftrians prefented fo impenetrable a front with their projected fpears, that the Swifs were repeatedly compelled to retire from the attack, till a native of UNDERWALDEN, named ARNOLD DE WIN-RELERIED, commending his family to his countrymen, fprang upon the enemy, and burying as many of their fpears as he could grafp in his body, made a breach in their like; the Swifs rufted in, and routed the Auftrians with a terrible faughter.

Quickly from our haftening foes, ALBERT's active care removed, Far amidft the' eternal fnows, Thefe who loved us,—thefe beloved.*

Then our cottage we forfook; Yet as down the fleeps we pafs'd, Many an agonizing look Homeward o'er the hills we caft.

Now we reach'd the nether glen,. Where in arms our brethren lay; Thrice five hundred fearlefs men, Men of adamant were they!

• Many of the UNDERWALDERS, on the approach of the French army, removed their families and cattle among the higher Alps; and themfelves returned to join their brethren, who had encamped in their native Valley, on the borders of the Lake, and availed the attack of the enemy.

OF SWITZERLAND.

Nature's bulwarks, built by Time, 'Gainft Eternity to ftand, Mountains, terribly fublime, Girt the camp on either hand...

Dim behind the valley brake. Into rocks that fled from view; Fair in front the glearning lake Roll'd its waters bright and blue.

'Midft the hamlets of the dale, STANTZ,* with fimple grandeur crown'd. Seem'd the Mother of the vale, With her children fcatter'd round.

'Midft the ruins of the dale, Now fhe bows her hoary head, Like the Widow of the vale Weeping o er her children dead.

* The Capital of UNDERWALDEN.

Happier then had been her fate, Ere fhe fell by fuch a foe, Had an earthquake funk her ftate,. Or the lightning laid her low !"

Shep. "Rather had the lightning's flafh Quick confumed thy country's foe ! Rather had the earthquake's crafh Laid her perjur'd tyrants low!

Why did Juffice not prevail ?"

Wand. "Ah! it was not thus to be !"

Siep. -- " Man of grief ! purfue thy tale To the death of Liberty."

BWD OF THE SECOND PART

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND.

Part III.

The WANDERER continues his narrative, and defiribes the battle and maffacre of UNDERWALDEN.

Wand. "FROM the valley we deferted, As the GAULS approach'd our fhores, Keels that darken'd all the tide, Tempefting the lake with oars.

> Then the mountain-echoes rang With the clangor of alarms: Shrill the fignal-trumpet fang; All our warriors leap'd to arms

On the margin of the flood, While the frantic foe drew nigh; Grim as watching Wolves we flood, Prompt as Eagles flretcht to fly.

In a deluge upon land Burft their overwhelming might; Back we hurl'd them from the firand, Still returning to the fight.

Still repulfed, their rage increased, Till the waves were warm with blood; Still repulfed, they never ceased, Till they founder'd in the flood.*

• The French made their first attack on the Valley of 'UNDERWALDEN from the Lake; but after a differate conflits they were withorioufly repelled, and two of their weffils, containing five bundred men, perified in the engagement. For on that triumphant day, UNDERWALDEN'S arms once more Broke Oppression's black array, Dash'd Invasion from her shore.

GAUL'S furviving barks retired, Muttering vengeance as they fled; Hope in us, by Victory fired, Raifed our Spirits from the dead.

From the dead our Spirits rofe, To the dead they foon return'd; Bright, on its eternal close, UNDERWALDEN's glory burn'd.

Star of SWITZERLAND! whole rays Shed fuch fweet expiring light, Ere the GALLIC comet's blaze Swept thy beauty into night :---

D.

Star of SWITZERLAND! thy fame No recording Bard hath fung, Yet be thine immortal name Infpiration to my tongue!*

While the lingering moon delay'd In the wildernefs of night, Ere the morn awoke the fhade Into lovelinefs and light :---

GALLIA's tigers, wild for blood, Darted on our fleeping fold ; Down the mountains, o'er the flood, Dark as thunder-clouds they roll'd.

* In the luft and decifive battle the UNDERWALDERS were overpowered by two French armies, which rushed upon them from the opposite mountains and furrounded their camp, while an affault at the fame time was made upon them from the Lake. By the trumpet's voice alarm'd, All the valley burft awake; All were in a moment arm'd From the barriers to the lake.

-In that valley, on that fhore, When the graves give up their dead, At the trumpet's voice once more Shall those flumberers quit their bed !

For the glen that gave them birth Hides their aftes in its womb: O 'tis venerable earth, Freedom's cradle, Freedom's tomb !—

With fuch defolating fhocks, Did the GAULS our camp affail, As if UNDERWALDEN'S rocks Had been tumbling to the vale.

Then on every fide begun That unutterable fight ; Never rofe the aftonifh'd fun On fo horrible a fight.

Once an Eagle of the rock, ('Twas an omen of our fate,) Stoop'd, and from my fcatter'd flock Bore a lambkin to his mate.

While the Parents fed their young,Lo ! a cloud of Vultures lean,By voracious famine ftung,Wildly-fcreaming rufh'd between.

Fiercely fought the eagle-twain, Though by multitudes oppreft, Till their little ones were flain, Till they perifh'd on their neft. More unequal was the fray, Which our band of brethren waged ; More infatiate o'er their prey, GAUL'S remorfelefs vultures raged.

In innumerable waves, Swoln with fury, grim with blood, Headlong roll'd the hordes of flaves, And ingulph'd us with a flood.

In the whirlpool of that flood,

Firm in fortitude divine,

Like the' eternal rocks, we ftood,

In the cataract of the Rhine.*

Till by tenfold force affail'd,

In a hurricane of fire,

When at length our phalanx fail'd,

Then our courage blazed the higher.

At SCHAFFHAUSEN, See COXE's Travels.

Broken into feeble bands, Fighting in diffever'd parts, Weak and weaker grew our hands, Strong and fironger fill our hearts.

Fierce amid the loud alarms, Shouting in the foremoft fray, Children raifed their little arms In their country's evil day.

On their country's dying bed, Wives and hufbands pour'd their breath ; Many a Youth and Maiden bled, Married at thine altar, Death !*

• In this miferable conflict, many of the Women and Children of the UNDERWALDERS fought in the ranks, by their -Husbands and Fathers and Friends, and fell gloriously for their Country. Wildly fcatter'd o'er the plain, Bloodier ftill the battle grew :---O ye Spirits of the flain ! Slain on thofe your prowefs flew:

Who fhall now your deeds relate ? Ye that fell unwept, unknown ; Mourning for your country's fate, But rejoicing in your own !

Virtue, valour, nought avail'd With fo mercilefs a foe; When the nerves of heroes fail'd, Cowards then could firike a blow.

•Cold and keen the' affaffin's blade Smote the father to the ground, Thro' the infant's breaft convey'd To the Mother's heart a wound !*

* An indiferiminate maffacre followed the battle.

UNDERWALDEN thus expired, But at her expiring flame, With fraternal feeling fired, Lo, a band of SWITZERS came.*

From the fteeps beyond the lake, Like a Winter's weight of fnow, When the huge Lavanges break, Devaftating all below ;-+

Down they rufh'd with headlong might, Swifter than the panting wind; All before them fear and flight! Death and filence all behind!

• Two bundred felf-devoted beroes from the Canton of SWITZ arrived, at the close of the battle, to the aid of their Brethren of UNDERWALDEN,—and perifhed to a man, after Laving flain thrice their number.

+ The LAVANGES are tremendous torrents of melting fnow, that tumble from the tops of the Alps, and deluge all the Country before them. How the foreft of the foe Bow'd before their thunder ftrokes ! When they laid the cedars low ; When they overwhelm'd the oaks !

Thus they hew'd their dreadful way; Till by numbers forced to yield, Terrible in death they lay, Like the' AVENGERS OF THE FIELD!"

END OF THE THIRD PART.

THÉ

IVANDERER OF SIVITZERLAND.

The WANDERER relates the circumflances attending the death of ALBERT.

Sbep. " PLEDGE the memory of the Brave, And the Spirits of the Dead; Pledge the venerable Grave, Valour's confectated bed. Wanderer ! this delicious cup, This infpiring goblet take;

> Drink the beverage, drink it up, For thy martyr'd brethren's fake."

THE WANDERER, &C.

Wand. "Hail!—all hail! the Patriot's grave, Valour's venerable bed! Hail! the memory of the Brave, And the Spirits of the dead!

> Time their triumphs fhall proclaim, And their rich reward be this, —Immortality of fame! Immortality of blifs !"

Shep. "On that melancholy plain, In that conflict of defpair, How was noble ALBERT flain? How didft thou, old Warrior! fare?"

Wand. "In the agony of ftrife, Where the heart of battle bled, Where his Country loft her life, Glorious ALBERT bow'd his heal. When our phalanx broke away,
And our ftouteft foldiers fell,
Where the dark rocks dimm'd the day,
Scowling o'er the deepeft dell;

. There like Lions, old in blood, Lions rallying round their den, ALBERT and his warriors flood; We were few, but we were men!

Breaft to breaft we fought the ground, Arm to arm repell'd the foe; Every motion was a wound, And a death was every blow.

Thus the clouds of funfet beam Warner with expiring light; Thus saturnal meteors frream Rodder thro' the darkening night. 2

Miracles our champions wrought; Who their dying deeds thall tell ! O how glorioufly they fought ! How triumphantly they fell ! One by one gave up the ghoft, Slain, not conquer'd,-they died free ! ALBERT flood,-himfelf an hoft ! Laft of all the Swifs was He ! So when Night, with rifing fhade, Climbs the Alps from fleep to fleep ; Till in hoary gloom array'd, All the giant-mountains fleep ;-High in heaven their Monarch* flands. Bright and beauteous from afar. Shining into diftant lands,

While I ftruggled thro' the fight, ALBERT was my fword and fhield; Till ftrange horror quench'd my fight, And I fainted on the field.

Slow awakening from that trance, When my foul return'd to day, Vanish'd were the fiends of France, —But in ALBERT's blood I lay !

Slain for me, his deareft breath On my lips he did refign; Slain for me, he fnatch'd his death From the blow that menaced mine.

He had raifed his dying head, And was gazing on my face; As I woke,—the fpirit fled, But I felt his laft embrace."

Shep. " Man of fuffering! fuch a tate

Would wring tears from marble eyes !" Wand. "-Ha! my daughter's cheek grows pale!" W.'s Wife.--- "Help, O help ! my daughter dies !"

Wand. " Calm thy transports, O my Wife !

Peace! for these fweet orphans' fake!" W.'s Wife.--O my joy! my hope! my life! O my child! my child! awake!"

Wand. "GoD! O GOD! whole goodnels gives; GoD! whole wildom takes away; Spare my Child!"

Shep. _____ "She lives! the lives!" Wand. "Lives?-my Daughter! didft thou fay? GOD ALNIGHTY ! on my knees, In the duft will I adore Thine unfearchable decrees ; --She was dead !--fhe lives once more !

W.'s Daughter --- "When poor Albert died, no prayer

Call'd him back to hated life :
 O that I had perifh'd there,
 Not his widow, but his wife!"

Waid. "Dare my Daughter thus repine? ALBERT! answer from above ; Tell me, — are these infants thine, Whom their Mother does not love?

W?'s Dtr. " Does not love !--my Father! hear, Hear me, or my heart will break ; Dear is life, but only dear, For your fervice and their fake. Bow'd to Heaven's mysterious will, I am worthy yet of you: ./Yes!----I am a Mother still, Though I seel a Widow too!

Wand. "Mother! Widow! Daughter !--all, All kind names in one,--my Child ! On thy faithful neck I fall ; Kifs me,----are we reconciled ?"

W's Dir. "Yes! to Albert I appeal; Albert! anfwer from above, That my Father's breaft may feel All his Daughter's heart of love."

"Shep.'s Wife.—" Faint and way-worn as they be With the day's long journey, Sire ! Let thy pilgrim family Now with me to reft retire."

30 THE WANDERER, &C.

Wand. "Yes, the hour invites to fleep; Till the morrow we muft part ; —Nay, my Daughter! do not weep, Do not weep, and break my heart.

> Sorrow-foothing, fweet repole On your peaceful pillows light ; Angel-hands your eyelids clofe ; And Gon blefs you all !--good night !

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND.

Part	V.

The WANDERER Seing left alone with the SHEFERD, relates his adventures after the battle of UNDERWALDER.

Shep. "WHEN the good man yields his breath, For the good man never dies, Bright beyond the gulph of death, Lo! the Land of Promise lies, Peace to ALBERT'S awful shade, In that land where forrows cease ! And to ALBERT'S affres, laid

In the earth's cold bofom, Peace !"

Wand. " On the fatal field I lay Till the hour, when twilight pale, Like the ghoft of dying day, Wander'd down the darkening vale.

Then in agony I role,

And with horror look'd around, Where embracing, friends and foes, Dead and dying, frew'd the ground

Many a widow fix'd her eye, Weeping, where her hufband bled, Heedlefs, though her babe was by Prattling to his father dead.

Many a Mother, in defpain, Turning up the ghaftly flain, Sought her fon, her hero there, --Whom fhe long'd to feek in vain k

OF. SWITZERLANS.

Dark the evening fhadows roll'd On the eye that gleam'd in death 3 And the evening-dews fell cold On the lip that gafp'd for breath...

As I gazed, an ancient Dame,
She was childlefs by her look!—.
With refreshing cordials came ;
Of her bounty I partook,

Then, with defperation bold, ALBERT's precious corpfe I bore On these shoulders weak and old, Bow'd with misery before

ALDERT'S Angel gave me frength; As I ftagger'd down the glen; And Lhid my charge at length. In its wildeft, deepeft, dep.

Then returning through the fhade To the battle-fcene, I fought 'Mongft the flain, an axe and fpade ; --With fuch weapons FREEMEN fought.

Scythes for fwords our youth did wield In that execrable firife ; Ploughfhares, in that horrid field, Bled with flaughter, breathed with life ;

In a dark and lonely cave, While the glimmering moon arofe, Thus I dug my ALBERT's grave; -There his hallow'd limbs repofe,

Tears then, tears too long repreft, Guth'd ;---they fell like healing balm, Till the whirlwind in my break Died into a dreary calm.

OF SWITZERLAND.

On the frefh earth's humid bed, Where my Martyr lay enfhrined, This forlorn, unhappy head, Crazed with anguifh, I reclined.

But while o'er my weary eyes, Soothing flumber feem'd to creep, Forth I fprang, with firange furprize, From the clafping arms of fleep.

For the bones of ALBERT dead Heaved the turf with horrid throes, And his grave, beneath my head, Burft afunder ;-----ALBERT rofe.

"Ha! my Son !--my Son !"--I cried ; "Wherefore haft thou left thy grave ?" -- "Fly, my Father !"-- he replied ; "Save my wife,--my children fave !"--

55

In the paffing of a breath, This tremendous fcene was o'er; Darknefs fhut the gates of Death, Silence feal'd them as before.

One pale moment fix'd I ftood In aftonifhment fevere : Horror petrified my blood, I was wither'd up with fear.

Then a fudden trembling came O'er my limbs; I felt on fire, Burning, quivering, like a flame In the inftant to expire."

Shep. "Rather like the mountain-oak, Tempeft-Ihaken, rooted faft, Grafping ftrength from every ftroke, While it wreftles with the blaft.

OF SWITZERLAND

Wand. "Aye !---my heart, unwont to yield, Quickly quell'd the firange affright, And undrunted o'er the field, I began my lonely flight,

> Loud the gufty night-wind blew; Many an awful paule between; Fits of light and darknefs flew, Wild and fudden, o'er the fcene.

For the moon's refplendent eye Gleams of transfert glory shed; And the clouds athwart the sky, Like a routed army sled.

Sounds and voices fill'd the vale Heard alternate, loud and low; Shouts of victory fwell'd the gale. But the breezes murmur'd work

As I climb'd the mountain's side, Where the lake and valley meet, All my country's power and pride Lay in ruins at my feet.

On that grim and ghaftly plain, UNDERWALDEN's heart-ftrings broke When fhe faw her heroes flain, And her rocks receive the yoke,

On that plain, in childhood's hours, From their Mothers' arms set free, Oft those heroes gather'd flowers, Often chaced the wandering bee.

On that plain, in rofy youth, They had fed their fathers' flocks, Told their love, and pledged their truth, In the fladow of those rocks.

OF SWITZERLAND.

There with fhepherd's pipe and fong, In the merry-mingling dance, Once they led their brides along, Now !----Perdition seize thee, France !?

Shep. "Heard not Heaven the' accufing cries Of the blood that fmoked around, While the life-warm facrifice Palpitated on the ground?"

Wand. "Wrath in filence heaps his flore To confound the guilty foe ; But the thunder will not roar, Till the flafh has ftruck the blow. Vengeance, Vengeance will not flay "

It shall burst on GALLIA's head, Sudden as the judgment-day To the unexpecting dead. 59;

From the Revolution's flood, Shall a fiery Dragon flart; He fhall drink his Mother's blood, He fhall eat his Father's heart: --

Nurft by Anarchy and Crime, He,—but diftance mocks my fight : —O thou great avenger, TIME ! "Dring thy firangeft Birth to light."

Shep. "Prophet! thou haft fpoken well, And I deem thy words divine: Now the mournful fequel tell Of thy country's woes and thine."

Wand. "Though the moon's bewilder'd bark, By the midnight tempeft toft, in a fea of vapours dark,

- In a gulph of clouds was loft :--

Yet my journey I purfued, Climbing many a weary fleep, Whence the clofing fcene I view'd With an eye, that would not weep.

STANTZ,—a melancholy pyre ! And her hamlets blazed behind, With ten thousand tongues of fire, Writhing, raging in the wind.*

Flaming piles, where'er I turn'd, Caft a grim and dreadful light; Like funereal lamps they burn'd In the fepulchre of night :---

The town of STANTZ, and the furrounding Villages, were burnt by the French, on the night after the battle of UNDERWALDEN, and the beautiful valley was converted into a wildernefs.

THE WANDERES.

While the red illumined flood, With a hoarfe and hollow roar, Seem'd a lake of living blood, Wildly weltering on the fhore.

'Midft the mountains, far away, Soon I fpied the facred fpot, Whence a flow-confuming ray Glimmer'd from my native cot.

At the fight my brain was fired, And afrefh my heart's wounds bled : Still I gazed ;-----the fpark expired, Nature fccm'd extinct!---I fled :---

Fled, and ere the noon of day, Reach'd the lonely Goatherd's neft, Where my wife, my children lay: Hufband !--Father !----think the reft,?

END OF THE FIFTH PART.

THE,

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND,

Part	VI.

THE WANDERER informs THE SHEPHERD, that, after the example of many of his Countrymen flying from the tyranny of FRANCE, it is his intention to fettle in fome remote Province of America.

Shep. "

"WANDERER! whither would ft thou roam?

To what region far away,

Bend thy fleps to find an home,

In the twilight of thy day?"

Wand. "In the twilight of my day, I am haftening to the weft; There my weary limbs to lay, Where the fun retires to ref.

Far beyond the' Atlantic floods, Stretch'd beneath the evening fly, Realms of mountains, dark with wools, In COLUMBIA's bofom lie.

There in glens and caverns rude Silent fince the world began Dwells the Virgin Solitude, Unbetray'd by faithlefs man

Where a tyrant never trod, Where a flave was never known, But where Nature worfhips Gop In the wilderness alone :---

Thither, thither would I roam; There my children may be free; ---I for them will find an home, They fhall find a grave for me.

د .

OF SWITZERLAND.

Though my fathers' bones afar In their native land repofe, Yet beneath the twilight ftar Soft on mine the turf fhall clofe.

Though the mould that wraps my clay₁ When this ftorm of life is o'er, Never,—never,—never lay On a human breaft before :—

Yet in fweet communion there, When the follows to the dead, Shall my bofom's partner thare Her poor hufband's lowly bed,

ALBERT's babes fhall deck our tomby And my daughter's duteous tears Bid the flowery hillock bloom, Thro' the winter-wafte of years.

THE WANDERER

- Shep. "Time! thy chariot-wheels delay; Death! unftring thy bended bow; Sun! forget to bring the day, Which fhall lay the WANDERER low!"
- Wand. "Though our Parent perifh'd here, Like the Phœnix on her neft, Lo! new-fledged her wings appear, Hovering in the golden weft.

Thither fhall her fons repair, And beyond the roaring main, Find their native country there, Find their SWITZERLAND again.

Mountains! can ye chain the will? Ocean! canft thou quench the heart? No!---I feel my Country ftill, LIBERTY! where'er thou art.

OF SWITZERLAND.

Thus it was in hoary time, When our fathers fallied forth, Full of confidence fublime,

From the famine-wafted North.*

Freedom in a land of rocks,
Wild as Scandinavia, give,
POWER ETERNAL !----where our flocks,
And our little ones may live !"

• There is a tradition among the Swiss, that they are defounded from the ancient Scandinavians; among whom, in a remote age, there arofe fo grievous a famine, that it was determined in the Affembly of the Nation, that every tenth man and his family flould quit their country, and feek a new poffeffion. Six thoufand, chof n by lot, thus emigrated at once from the North. They prayed to GOD to conduct them to a land like their own, where they might dwell in freedom and quiet, finding foad for their families and pafture for their cattle. GOD, fuys the tradition, led them to a Valley among the Alps, where they cleared away the forefle, built the town of SWITZ, and afterwards peopled and cultivated the Cantons of URI and UNDERWALDEN.

THE WANDERER

Thus they pray'd ;----a fecret hand. Led them, by a path unknown, To that dear delightful land, Which I yet muft call my own.

To the Vale of SWITZ they came a Soon their meliorating toil Gave the forefts to the flame, And their afhes to the foil.

Thence their ardent labours fpread_a Till above the mountain-fnows Towering Beauty fhew'd her head_a And a new creation role !

-So, in regions wild and wide, We will pierce the favage woods, Clothe the rocks in purple pride, Plough the vallies, tame the floods.

OF SWITZERLAND.

Till a beauteous inland-ifle, By a foreft-fea embraced, Shall make Defolation fmile In the depth of his own wafte.

There, unenvied and unknown, We fhall dwell fecure and free, In a country all our own, In a land of Liberty !"

Shep. "Yet the woods, the rocks, the fireams, Unbeloved, fhall bring to mind, —Warm with Evening's purple beams, Dearer objects left behind :

> And thy native country's fong Caroll'd in a foreign clime, When new echoes fhall prolong, —Simple, tender and fublime :—

How will thy poor check turn pale ! And before thy banifh'd eyes, UNDERWALDEN'S charming vale, And thine own fweet cottage rife !"

Wand. —"By the glorious ghoft of TELL! By MORGARTHEN's awful fray! By the field where Albert fell In thy laft and bitter day!

> SOUL OF SWITZERLAND! arife: ——Ha! the fpell has 'waked the dead From her afhes to the fkies, SWITZERLAND exalts her head.

See the Queen of Mountains fland, In immortal mail complete, With the lightning in her hand, And the Alps beneath her feet.

OF SWITZERLAND.

Hark! her voice :-- " My fons! awake; "Freedom dawns, behold the day! " From the bed of bondage break, " Tis your Mother calls,--obey!"

At the found our fathers' graves, On each ancient battle-plain, Utter groans, and tofs like waves When the wild blaft fweeps the main.

Rife, my Brethren ! caft away All the chains that bind you flaves; Rife,—your Mother's voice obey, And appeale your fathers' graves.

Strike,—the conflict is begun; Freemen! Soldiers! follow me; Shout,—the Victory is won,— SWITZERLAND AND LIBERTY!³⁹ 1

- Shep. "Warrior ! Warrior ! ftay thine arm ! Sheathe, O fheathe thy frantic fword !"
- Wand. —" Ah ! I rave !—I faint !—the charma flies,—and memory is reftored!

Yes, to agony reftored From the too transporting charm ! Sleep forever, O my fword ! Be thou wither'd, O mine arm !

SWITZERLAND is but a name ! -----Yet I feel where'er I roam, That my heart is full the fame ; SWITZERLAND is full my home !?

END OF THE SIXTE AND LAST PARS,

THE GRAVE,

THERE is a calm for those who weep, A rest for weary Pilgrims found, They fostly lie and sweetly sleep, Low in the ground.

The form that wrecks the winter fky, No more disturbs their deep repole, Than fummer evening's lateft figh, That fuuts the role.

I long to lay this painful head And aching heart beneath the foil, To flumber in that dreamlefs bed From all my toil.

M.

For Mifery ftole me at my birth, And caft me helpless on the wild; I perifh;----O my Mother Earth! Take home thy Child!

On thy dear lap thefe limbs reclined Shall gently moulder into thee; Nor leave one wretched trace behind, Refembling me.

Hark !—a ftrange found affrights mine ear; My pulfe,—my brain runs.wild,—I rave: —Ah ! who art thon whofe voice I hear? —"I am THE GRAVE!

"The GRAVE, that never fpake before, Hath found at length a tongue to chide: O liften !---I will fpeak no more :

Be fient, Pride !

"Art thou a WRETCH, of hope forlorn, The victim of confuming care? Is thy diffracted conficience torn By fell defpair ?

" Do foul mifdeeds of former times Wring with remorfe thy guilty breaft And Ghofts of unforgiven crimes

Murder thy reft ?

"Lafh'd by the furies of the mind, From wrath and vengeance wouldft thou flee? Ab! think not, hope not, Fool! to find A friend in me.

"By all the terrors of the tomb, Beyond the power of tongue to tell! By the dread fecrets of my womb! By Death and Hell! 75

"I charge thee LIVE !—repent and pray; In duft thine infamy deplore;. There yet is mercy;—go thy way, And fin no more.

" Art thou a MOURNER ?—Haft thou known" The joy of innocent delights ? Endearing days forever flown,

And tranquil nights?

"O LIVE !-----and deeply cherifh fiill The fweet remembrance of the paft : Rely on Heaven's unchanging will For peace at laft.

"Art thou a WANDERER ?- Haft thou feen O'erwhelming tempefts drown thy bark ? A flaipwreck'd Sufferer haft thou been,

ľ

" Though long of winds and waves the fport, Condemn'd in wretchedness to roam, LIVE !---thou shalt reach a sheltering port, A quiet home.

To FRIENDSHIP didft thou truft thy fame, And was thy Friend a deadly foe, Who ftole into thy breaft to aim

A furer blow ?

Go feek that treasfure, feldom found;
 Of power the fierceft griefs to calm,
 And foothe the bofom's deepeft wound?
 With heavenly balm.

"In WOMAN haft thou placed thy bliss, And did the Fair One faithlefs prove? Hath fhe betray'd thee with a kifs, And fold thy love?

ć

LIVE !—'twas a falfe bewildering fire; Too often Love's infidious dart Thrills the fond foul with fweet defire; But kills the heart.

A nobler flame shall warm thy breast, A brighter Maiden's virtuous charms ! Bleft shalt thou be, supremely bleft, In Beauty's arms.

"----Whate'er thy lot,---Whoe'er thou be,---Confeis thy folly,--kifs the rod, And in thy chaftening forrows fee The hand of GOD.

" A bruifed reed he will not break, Afflictions all his children feel; He wounds them for his mercy's fake, He wounds to heal !

"Humbled beneath his mighty hand,
Proftrate his Providence adore :
'Tis done!—Arife! HE bids thee fland,
To fall no more.

"Now, Traveller in the vale of tears ! To realms of everlafting light, Through Time's dark wildernefs of years, Purfue thy flight.

"There IS a calm for those who weep, A rest for weary Pilgrims found; And while the mouldering ashes sleep, Low in the ground;

" The Soul, of origin divine, GOD'S glorious image, freed from clay, In heaven's eternal fphere fhall fhine, A ftar of day !

"The SUN is but a fpark of fire, A transfert meteor in the fky; The SOUL, immortal as its Sire, SHALL NEVER DIE."

C

THE LYRE.

"AH! WHO WOULD LOVE THE LYRE!" G. A. Stevens.

WHERE the roving rill meander'd Down the green, retiring vale, Poor, forlorn ALCEUS wander'd, Pale with thought, ferenely pale : Hopele's forrow, o'er his face Breathed a melancholy grace, And fix'd on every feature there The mournful refignation of defpair.

THE LYRE.

O'er his arm, his lyre neglected, Coldly, carelefsly he flung ; And, in fpirit deep dejected, Thus the penfive Poet fung ; While, at midnight's folemn noon, Sweetly fhone the cloudlefs moon, And all the ftars, around his head, Benignly bright, their mildeft influence fhed.

"Lyre! O, Lyre! my chofen treafure,
"Solace of my bleeding heart;
"Lyre! O, Lyre! my only pleafure,
"We muft ever, ever part:
"Tis in vain thy Poet fings,
"Wooes in vain thine heavenly ftrings,
"The Mufe's wretched Sons are born
"To cold neglect, and penury, and fcorn.

"That which ALEXANDER figh'd for,
"That which CÆSAR's foul poffefs'd,
"That which Heroes, Kings have died for,
"Glory !—animates my breaft :
"Hark ! the charging trumpets' throats
"Pour their death-defying notes;
"To arms !" they call ; to arms I fly,
"Like WOLFE to conquer—and like WOLFE to die !

Soft !—the blood of murder'd legions
Summons vengeance from the fkies;
Flaming towns, and ravaged regions,
All in awful judgment rife !
O then, innocently brave,
I will wreftle with the wave;
Lo ! Commerce fpreads the daring fail,
And yokes her naval chariots to the gale.

Blow ye breezes !---gently blowing,
Waft me to that happy fhore,
Where, from fountains ever flowing,
Indian realms their treafures pour;
Thence returning, poor in health,
Rich in honefty and wealth,
O'er thee, my dear paternal foil !
I'll ftrew the golden harveft of my toil.

"Then fhall Mifery's fons and daughters
"In their lowly dwellings fing;
—" Bounteous as the Nile's dark waters,
"Undifcover'd as their fpring,
"I will fcatter, o'er the land,
"Bleffings with a fecret hand;
—" For fuch angelic tafks defign'd,
"I give the Lyre and forrow to the wind."

On an oak, whofe branches hoary

Sigh'd to every paffing breeze, Sigh'd, and told the fimple ftory

Of the patriarch of trees; High in air his harp he hung, Now no more to rapture ftrung; Then warm in hope, no longer pale, He Blufh'd adieu, and rambled down the dale.

Lightly touch'd by fairy fingers,

Hark !----the Lyre enchants the wind; Fond ALCEUS liftens, lingers,

-Lingering, liftening, looks behind Now the mufic mounts on high, Sweetly fwelling through the fky; To every tone, with tender heat, His heart-ftrings vibrate, and his pulfes beat. Now the ftrains to filence ftealing, Soft in ecftacies expire ; Oh! with what romantic feeling Poor ALCÆUS grafps the Lyre! Lo! his furious hand he flings, In a tempeft o'er the ftrings ; He ftrikes the chords fo quick, fo loud, 'Tis JOVE that fcatters lightning from a cloud !

"Lyre! O, Lyre! my chofen treafure,
"Solace of my bleeding heart;
"Lyre! O, Lyre! my only pleafure,
—" We will never, never part!
"Glory, Commerce, now in vain,
"Tempt me to the field, the main;
"The Mufe's Sons are bleft, tho' born
"To cold neglect, and penury, and fcorn.

THE LYRE.

"What, tho' all the world neglect me,
"Shall my haughty foul repine ?
"And fhall poverty deject me,
"While this hallow'd lyre is mine ?
"While this hallow'd lyre is mine ?
"Heaven,—that o'er my helplefs head,
"Many a wrathful vial fhed,
—" Heaven gave this lyre !—and thus decreed,
"Be thou a bruifed, but not a broken reed !"

REMONSTRANCE TO WINTER.

AH! why, unfeeling WINTER! why Still flags thy torpid wing?
Fly, melancholy Seafon, fly, And yield the year to SPRING.
SPRING,—the young cherubim of love,

An exile in difgrace,-

Flits o'er the scene, like NOAH's dove,

Nor finds a refting place.

When on the mountain's azure peak,

Alights her fairy form,

Cold blow the winds,-and dark and bleak,

Around her rolls the florm.

REMONSTRANCE TO WINTERS

89

If to the valley fhe repair

For ihelter and defence,

Thy wrath purfues the mourner there,

And drives her, weeping, thence.

She feeks the brook-the faithlefs brook.

Of her unmindful grown, Feels the chill magic of thy look, And lingers into ftone.

She wooes her embryo-flowers in vain.

To rear their infant.heads;

-Deaf to her voice, her flowers remain Enchanted in their beds.

In vain the bids the trees expand

Their green luxuriant charms; --Bare in the wildernefs they ftand, And ftretch their withering arms, M. Her favourite birds, in feeble notes, Lament thy long delay; And firsin their little flammering throats, To charm thy blafts away.

Ah! WINTER, calm thy cruel rage, Release the ftruggling year; Thy power is past, decrepid Sage ? Arife and disappear.

The ftars that graced thy fplendid night Are loft in warmer rays; The Sun, rejoicing in his might, Unrolls celeftial days.

Then why, usurping WINTER, why Still flags thy frozen wing ? Fly, unrelenting tyrant, fly— And yield the year to Spring ?

SONG.

ROUND LOVE'S Elyfian bowers, The fofteft profpects rife; There bloom the fweeteft flowers, There fhine the pureft fkies, And joy and rapture gild awhile The cloudlefs heaven of BEAUTY'S fmile.

Round Love's deferted bowers

Tremendous rocks arife;

Gold mildews blight the flowers,

Tornadoes rend the fkies,

And PLEASURE's waning moon goes down Amid the night of BEAUTY's frown.

SONG.

Then YOUTH, thou fond believer!

The wily Syren fhun:

Who trufts the dear Deceiver

Will furely be undone!

When BEAUTY triumphs, ah! beware,

-Her finile is hope !-her frown defpair !

THE FOWLER.

	SONO;
~	50110,

ALTERED FROM A GERMAN AIR, IN THE OPERA OF " die zauberflöte," set to music by mozart.

A CARELESS, whiftling Lad am I, On fky-lark wings my moments fly; There's not a FOWLER more renown'd In all the world—for ten miles round ! Ah ! who like me can fpread the net ? Or tune the merry flageolet ? Then, why, O ! why fhould I repine, Since all the roving birds are mine ?

THE FOWLER.

The thrufh and linnet in the vale, The fweet fequefter'd nightingale, The bullfinch, wren and woodlark, alk: Obey my fummons when I call: O! could I form fome cunning fnare. To catch the coy, coquetting fair, In CUPID's filmy web fo fine, The pretty girls fhould all be mine !

ł

When all were mine,—among the reft, I'd chufe the Lafs I liked the beft, And fhould my charming mate be kind, And fmile, and kifs me to my mind, With her I'd tie the nuptial knot, Make HYMEN's cage of my poor cot, And love away this fleeting life, Like Robin Redbreaft and his wife !

SONG;

WRITTEN FOR A CONVIVIAL SOCIETT, WHOSE MOTTO WAS " FRIENDSHIP, LOFE AND TRUTH."

WHEN "Friendlhip, Love and Truth" abound Among a band of BROTHERS, The cup of joy goes gayly round, Each fhares the blifs of others : Sweet roles grace the thorny way Along this vale of forrow; The flowers that fled their leaves to day, Shall bloom again tomorrow : How grand in age, how fair in youth, Are holy "FRIENDSHIP, LOVE and TRUTH !" On Halcyon wings our moments pafs, Life's cruel cares beguiling ;

Old TIME lays down his fcythe and glafs, In gay good humour fmiling: 64

SONG.

With ermine beard and forelock grey,
His reverend front adorning,
He looks like Winter turn'd to May,
Night foften'd into Morning !
How grand in age, how fair in youth,
Are holy "FRIENDSHIP, LOVE and TRUTH !"

From these delightful fountains flow Ambrofial rills of pleafure ; Can man defire, can heaven beftow

A more refplendent treafure ? Adorn'd with gems fo richly bright, We'll form a Conftellation, Where every Star, with modeft light, Shall gild his proper ftation. How grand in age, how fair in youth, Are holy "FRIENDSHIP, LOVE and TRUTH !"

RELIGION.

AN OCCASIONAL HYMN.

THRO' fhades and folitudes profound, The fainting traveller winds his way; Bewildering meteors glare around, And tempt his wandering feet aftray: Welcome, thrice welcome, to his eye, The fudden moon's infpiring light, When forth fhe fallies thro' the fky, The guardian Angel of the night! Thus mortals blind and weak, below Purfue the phantom Blifs, in vain; The world's a wildernefs of woe,

And life a pilgrimage of pain !

HYMN.

Till mild RELIGION, from above, Defcends, a fweet engaging form, The meffenger of heavenly love, The bow of promife in a ftorm ! Then guilty paffions wing their flight, Sorrow, remorfe, affliction ceafe; RELIGION's yoke is foft and light, And all her paths are paths of peace. Ambition, pride, revenge depart, And folly flies her chaftening rod; She makes the humble contrite heart, A temple of the living Gop. Beyond the narrow vale of time. Where bright celeftial ages roll, To fcenes eternal, fcenes fublime, She points the way and leads the foul.

HYMN.

ĩÛ

At her approach the Grave appears The Gate of Paradife reftored ; Her voice the watching Cherub hears, And drops his double-flaming fword.

Baptized with her renewing fire, May we the crown of glory gain; Rife when the Hoft of Heaven expire, And reign with GoD, for ever reign.

"THE JOY OF GRIEF."

OSSIAN.

2.

SWEET the hour of tribulation, When the heart can freely figh; And the tear of refignation Twinkles in the mournful eye.

Have you felt a kind emotion

Tremble through your troubled breaft; Soft as evening o'er the ocean,

When the charmathe waves to reft?

Have you loft a friend, a brother ?

Heard a father's parting breath ? Gazed upon a lifelefs mother,

Till fhe feem'd to wake from death ?

Have you felt a fpoufe expiring In your arms, before your view ? Watch'd the lovely foul retiring

From her eyes, that broke on you ?.

Did not grief then grow romantic, Raving on remember'd blifs ? Did you not, with fervour frantic, Kifs the lips that felt no kifs }

Yes! but, when you had refign'd her, Life and you were reconciled ; ANNA left—fhe left behind her, One, one dear, one only child.

But before the green mofs peeping, His poor mother's grave array'd, In that grave, the infant fleeping On the mother's lap was laid.

۰.

Horror then, your heart congealing, Chill'd you with intenfe defpalr; Can you recollect the feeling ? No! there was no feeling there !

From that gloomy trance of forrow,

When you woke to pangs unknown, How unwelcome was the morrow, For it role on YOU ALONE I

Sunk in felf-confuming anguith,

Can the poor heart always ache ? No, the tortured nerve will languish, Or the ftrings of life muft break.

O'er the yielding brow of fadnefs, One faint finile of comfort fiele; One foft pang of tender gladnefs Exquifitely thrill'd your foul.

102

THE JOY OF GRIEF.

While the wounds of woe are healing, While the heart is all refign'd, 'Tis the folemn feaft of feeling, 'Tis the fabbath of the mind.

Penfive memory then retraces Scençs of blifs for ever fled, Lives in former times and places, Holds communion with the dead.

And, when night's prophetic flumbers Rend the veil to mortal eyes, From their tombs, the fainted numbers Of our loft companions rife.

You have feen a friend, a brother, Heard a dear dead father fpeak ; Proved the fondness of a mother, Felt her texts upon yous check ! 104

Dreams of love your grief beguiling, You have clafp'd a confort's charms, And received your infant fmiling From his mother's facred arms.

Trembling, pale, and agonizing, While you mourn'd the vifion gone, Bright the morning ftar arifing Open'd heaven, from whence it fhone.

Thither all your wifhes bending Rofe in extacy fublime, Thither all your hopes afcending Triumph'd over death and time.

Thus afflicted, bruifed and broken, Have you known fuch fweet relief? Yes, my friend ! and, by this token, You have felt "THE JOY OF GRIEF."

BATTLE OF ALEXANDRIA.

At Thebes, in ancient Egypt, was erected a flatue of Memnon, with an harp in his hand, which is faid to have hailed with delightful mufic the rifing fun, and in melancholy tones to have mourned his departure. The introduction of this celebrated Lyre, on a modern occafion, will be cenfured as an Anachronifm by thofe only, who think that its chords have been touched unfkilfully.

HARP of MEMNON! fweetly frung

To the mulic of the fpheres;

While the Hero's dirge is fung,

Breathe enchantment to our cars.

As the fun's defcending beams,

Glancing o'er thy feeling wire,

Kindle every chord, that gleams

Like a ray of heavenly fire:

0.

Let thy numbers, foft and flow,

O'er the plain with carnage fpread, Soothe the dying, while they flow

To the memory of the dead.

Bright as VENUS, newly born, Blufhing at her maiden charms; Frefh from ocean rofe the Morn, When the trumpet blew to arms.

O that Time had ftay'd his flight, Ere that Morning left the main; Fatal as the EGYPTIAN night, When the eldeft born were flain !

Lafh'd to madnefs by the wind, As the Red-fea-furges roar, Leave a gloomy gulph behind, And devour the fhrinking fhore: Thus, with overwhelming pride, GALLIA's brighteft, boldeft boaft, In a deep and dreadful tide, Roll'd upon the BRITISH hoft.

Dauntlefs thefe their ftation held, Though, with unextinguish'd ire, GALLIA's legions, thrice repell'd, Thrice return'd through blood and fire.

Thus, above the ftorms of time,

Towering to the facred fpheres, Stand the Pyramids fublime,

-Rocks amid the flood of years !

Now the Veteran CHIEF drew nigh; Conqueft cowering on his creft, Valour beaming from his eye, Pity bleeding in his breaft.

103 THE BATTLE OF ALEXANDRIA.

BRITAIN faw him thus advance, In her Guardian-Angel's form; But he lower'd on hoftile FRANCE, Like the Dæmon of the Storm.

On the whirlwind of the war, High he rode in vengeance dire; To his friends a leading ftar, To his foes confuming fire.

Then the mighty pour'd their breath, Slaughter feafted on the brave; 'Twas the Carnival of Death! 'Twas the Vintage of the Grave !

Charged with ABERCROMBIE's doom, Lightning wing'd a cruel ball: 'Twas the Herald of the Tomb, And the HERO felt the call. Felt-and raifed his arm on high,

Victory well the fignal knew,

Darted from his awful eye,

And the force of FRANCE o'erthrew.

But the horrors of that fight,

Were the weeping MUSE to tell; O 'twould cleave the womb of night, And awake the dead that fell !

Gash'd with honourable scars,

Low in Glory's lap they lie: Though they fell, they fell like ftars, Streaming fplendour through the fky.

Yet fhall Memory mourn that day, When with expectation pale, Of her foldier far away,

The poor widow hears the tale.

110 THE BATTLE OF ALEXANDRIA.

In imagination wild,

She shall wander o'er this plain; Rave,—and bid her orphan child Seek his fire among the slain.

Gently, from the Weftern deep, O ye evening breezes rife ! O'er the Lyre of MEMNON fweep, Wake its fpirit with your fighs.

Harp of MEMNON ! fweetly ftrung-

To the mulic of the fpheres; While the Hero's dirge is fung, Breathe enchantment to our ears.

Let thy numbers foft and flow,

O'er the plain with carnage fpread,... Soothe the dying, while they flow

To the memory of the dead.

ŧ

None but folemn, tender tones,

Tremble from thy plaintive wires;

Hark !- the wounded WARRIOR groans !

Hufh thy warbling,-he expires.

Hufh !---while Sorrow wakes and weeps :

O'er his relicks cold and pale, Night her filent vigil keeps, In a mournful moonlight veil.

Harp of MEMNON ! from afar Ere the lark falute the fky, Watch the rifing of the ftar, That proclaims the morning nigh.

Soon the fun's afcending rays, In a flood of hallow'd fire, O'er thy kindling chords fhall blaze, And thy magic foul infpire.

112 THE BATTLE OF ALEXANDRIA.

Then thy tones triumphant pour, Let them pierce the Hero's grave; Life's tumultuous battle o'er, O how fweetly fleep the brave ! From the duft their laurels bloom, High they fhoot, and flourish free; Glory's temple is the tomb ! Death is immortality !

THE head that oft this PILLOW prefs'd, That aching head, is gone to reft; It's little pleafures now no more, And all its mighty forrows o'er, For ever, in the worm's dark bed, For ever fleeps that humble head !

MY FRIEND was young, the world was new; The world was falfe, MY FRIEND was true; Lowly his lot, his birth obfcure, His fortune hard, MY FRIEND was poor; To wildom he had no pretence, A child of fuffering, not of fenfe; For NATURE never did impart A weaker head, a warmer heart. His fervent foul, a foul of flame, Confumed its frail terreftrial frame; That fire from Heaven fo fiercely burn'd, That whence it came it foon return'd: And yet, O PILLOW ! yet to me, My gentle FRIEND furvives in thee, In thee, the partner of his bed, In thee, the widow of the dead !

On HELICON'S infpiring brink, Ere yet MY FRIEND had learn'd to think, Once as he país'd the carelefs day Among the whifpering reeds at play, The MUSE OF SORROW wander'd by; Her penfive beauty fix'd his eye;

With fweet aftonishment he fmiledy The Gipfey faw-fhe ftole the child ; And foft on her ambrofial breaft Sang the delighted babe to reft, Convey'd him to her inmost grove, And loved him with a Mother's love. Awakening from his rofy nap, And gayly fporting on her lap, His wanton fingers o'er her lyre Twinkled like electric fire : Quick and quicker as they flew, Sweet and fweeter tones they drew: Now a bolder hand he flings, And dives among the deepeft ftrings; Then forth the mufic brake like thunder; Back he ftarted, wild with wonder ! The MUSE OF SORROW wept for joy, And clafp'd and kifs'd her chofen boy.

Ah! then no more his finiling hours Were fpent in Childhood's Eden-bowers, The fall from Infant-innocence, The fall to knowledge, drives us thence : O knowledge ! worthlefs at the price, Bought with the lofs of PARADISE! As happy ignorance declined, And reafon rofe upon his mind, Romantic hopes and fond defires (Sparks of the foul's immortal fires!) Kindled within his breaft the rage To breathe thro' every future age, To clafp the flitting fhade of fame, To build an everlafting name, O'erleap the narrow vulgar fpan And live beyond the life of man!

Then NATURE's charms his heart posses'd, And NATURE's glory fill'd his breaft:

The fweet Spring-morning's infant rays, Meridian Summer's youthful blaze, Maturer Autumn's evening mild. And hoary Winter's midnight wild, Awoke his eye, infpired his tongue; For every fcene he loved, he fung. Rude were his fongs, and " filly footh," Till Boyhood bloffom'd into Youth: Then nobler themes his fancy fired, To bolder flights his foul afpired ; And as the New-Moon's opening eye Broadens and brightens thro' the fky, From the dim ftreak of weftern light To the full orb that rules the night: Thus, gathering luftre in its race, And fhining thro' infinite fpace, From earth to heaven his GENIUS foar'd. Time and eternity explored,

And hail'd, where'er its footfteps trod, In NATURE's temple, NATURE'S GOD: Or pierced the human breaft to fcan-The hidden majefty of Man; Man's hidden weaknefs too defcried, His glory, grandeur,-meannefs, pride; Purfued, along their erring courfe, The ftreams of paffion to their fource ;-Or in the mind's creation fought New ftars of fancy, worlds of thought ! -Yet fill thro' all his ftrains would flow A tone of uncomplaining woe, Kind as the tear in Pity's eye, Soft as the flumbering Infant's figh, So fweetly, exquifitely wild, It fpake the MUSE OF SORROW'S child.

O PILLOW ! then, when light withdrew; To thee the fond Enthuliaft flew;

118

THE -PHLLOW.

On thee, in penfive mood reclined, He pour'd his contemplative mind, Till o'er his eyes, with mild controul, Sleep like a foft enchantment ftole, Charm'd into life his airy fchemes, And realized his waking dreams.

Soon from those waking dreams he woke, The fairy fpell of fancy broke; In vain he breathed a foul of fire Thro' every chord that ftrung his lyre, No friendly echo cheer'd his tongue, Amidft the wilderness he fung; Louder and bolder Bards were crown'd, Whose distonance his music drown'd : The Public ear, the Public voice, Despised his fong, denied his choice, Denied a name,—a life in death, Denied—a bubble and a breath.

Stript of his fondeft, deareft claim, And difinherited of fame, To thee, O PILLOW ! thee alone, He made his filent anguifh known ; His haughty fpirit fcorn'd the blow, That laid his high ambition low ; But ah ! his looks affumed in vain A cold ineffable difdain, While deep he cherifh'd in his breaft The fcorpion that confumed his reft.

Yet other fecret griefs had he, O PILLOW! only told to thee: Say, did not hopelefs love intrude On his poor bosom's folitude? Perhaps on thy foft lap reclined, In dreams the cruel FAIR was kind, That he might more intensely know The bitterness of waking woe?

íı,

Whate'er those pangs from me conceal'd, To thee in midnight groans reveal'd ; They ftung remembrance to defpair: "A wounded Spirit who can bear !" Meanwhile difeafe, with flow decay, Moulder'd his feeble frame away; And as his evening fun declined The fhadows deepen'd o'er his mind. What doubts and terrors then poffefs'd The dark dominion of his breaft ! How did delirious fancy dwell On Madnefs, Suicide, and Hell! There was on earth no POWER to fave: -But, as he fhudder'd o'er the grave, He faw from realms of light defcend The Friend of him who has no friend, RELIGION!-----Her almighty breath Rebuked the winds and waves of death;

She bade the ftorm of frenzy ceafe, And finiled a calm, and whifper'd peace; Amidft that calm of fweet repofe, To HEAVEN his gentle Spirit rofe. ļ

VERSES

TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE JOSEPH BROWNES

OF LOTHERSDALE,

One of the People called Quakers,

WHO HAD SUFFERED A LONG CONFINEMENT IN THE CASTLE OF YORK, AND LOSS OF ALL HIS WORLDLY PROPERTY, FOR CONSCIENCE' SAKE,

"SPIRIT leave thine houfe of clay; Lingering Duft refign thy breath! Spirit caft thy chains away; Duft be thou diffolved in death!" . Thus thy GUARDIAN ANGEL fpoke,

As he watch'd thy dying bed ; As the bonds of life he broke, And the ranfom'd Captive fled. " Prifoner, long detain'd below ; Prifoner, now with freedom bleft ; Welcome from a world of woe, Welcome to a land of reft !"

Thus thy GUARDIAN ANGEL fang, As he bore thy foul on high; While with Hallelujahs rang All the region of the fky.

-----Ye that mourn a FATHER's lofs, Ye that weep a FRIEND no more ! Call to mind the CHRISTIAN crofs, Which your FRIEND, your EATHER bore.

Grief and penury and pain Still attended on his way, And Oppreffion's fcourge and chain, More unmerciful than they.

OF JOSEPH BROWNE.

Yet while travelling in diftrefs, ('Twas the eldeft curfe of fin) Thro' the world's wafte wildernefs, He had Paradife within.

And along that vale of tears, Which his humble footfteps trod, Still a fhining path appears, Where the MOURNER walk'd with GOD.

Till his MASTER, from above, When the promifed hour was come, Sent the chariot of his love To convey the WANDERER home.

Saw ye not the wheels of fire, And the fteeds that cleft the wind? Saw ye not his foul afpire, When his mantle drop'd behind?

126 TO THE MEMORY OF JOSEPH BROWNE.

Ye that caught it as it fell, Bind that mantle round your breaft; So in you his mecknefs dwell, So on you his fpirit reft!

Yet, rejoicing in his lot, Still fhall memory love to weep O'er the venerable fpot, Where his dear cold relicks fleep

Grave! the guardian of his duft, Grave! the treasury of the skies, Every atom of thy truft Refts in hope again to rife.

THE THUNDER STORM.

O FOR Evening's browneft fhade ! Where the breezes play by ftealth In the foreft-cinctured glade,

Round the hermitage of HEALTH: While the noon-bright mountains blaze In the fun's tormenting rays.

O'er the fick and fultry plains,

Thro' the dim delirious air, Agonizing filence reigns,

And the wannels of defpair : Nature faints with fervent heat, —Ah! her pulse hath ceased to beat! Now in deep and dreadful gloom,

Clouds on clouds portentous fpread, Black as if the day of doom

Hung o'er NATURE's fhrinking head : Lo! the lightning breaks from high, --GOD is coming !--GOD is nigh !

Hear ye not his chariot wheels, As the mighty thunder rolls ? NATURE, ftartled NATURE reels, From the centre to the poles: Tremble !--Ocean, Earth, and Sky ! Tremble !--Gop is paffing by !

Darknefs, wild with horror, forms His myfterious hiding place; Should He, from his ark of ftorms, Rend the veil and fhew his face, At the judgment of his eye, All the Universe would die.

Brighter, broader lightnings flash,

Hail and rain tempertuous fall ; Louder, deeper thunders crash, Defolation threatens all ;

Struggling NATURE gafps for breath, In the agony of death.

GOD OF VENGEANCE ! from above While thine awful bolts are hurl'd, O remember Thou art LOVE ! Spare !---O fpare a guilty world ! Stay Thy flaming wrath awhile, See Thy bow of promise fmile !

Welcome, in the eaftern cloud, Meffenger of Mercy ftill 1 R.

HO THE THUNDER STORM

Now, ye winds! proclaim aloud, "Peace on Earth, to Man good will!" NATURE! GoD's repenting Child, See thy Parent reconciled!

Hark! the Nightingale, afar,

Sweetly fings the fun to reft, And awakes the evening ftar In the rofy-tinted weft : While the moon's enchanting eye Opens paradife on high !

Cool and tranquil is the night,

NATURE's fore afflictions ceafe, For the ftorm, that fpent its might, Was a covenant of peace : VENGEANCE drops her harmlefs rod; --MERCY is the POWER OF GOD!

ODE

TO THE VOLUNTEERS OF BRITAIN,

On the prospect of Invasion.

O FOR the death of Thole, Who for their Country die, Sink on her bolom to repole, And triumph where they lie !

How beautiful in death The WARRIOR'S corfe appears, Embalm'd by fond AFFECTION'S breath, And bathed in WOMAN'S tears !

Their lovelieft native earth Enfhrines the fallen Brave; In the dear land that gave them birth They find their tranquil grave. ----But the wild waves fhall fweep BRITANNIA's foes away, And the blue monfters of the deep Be furfeited with prey !---

By ALFRED's Spirit, No! —Ring, ring the loud alarms; Ye drums awake, ye clarions blow, Ye Heralds fhout "to arms!"

To arms our Heroes fly; And leading on their lines, The BRITISH BANNER in the fky,' The ftar of conqueft, fhines. The lowering battle forms It's terrible array ; Like classing clouds in mountain-ftorms, That thunder on their way ;

The rufhing armies meet : And while they pour their breath, The ftrong Earth fhudders at their feet, The day grows dim with death.

---Ghofts of the mighty_dead! Your Children's hearts infpire; And while they on your afhes tread, Rekindle all your fire.

The Dead to life return ; Our fathers' fpirits rife ! . --My Brethren ! in YOUR breafts they burn, They fparkle in YOUR eyes. Now launch upon the foe The lightning of your rage; Strike, ftrike the' affailing Giants low, The TITANS of the age.

They yield,—they break,—they fiy; The victory is won : Purfue !—____they faint,—they fall,—they die; O ftay !____the work is done.

SPIRIT OF VENGEANCE ! reft : Sweet MERCY cries, "forbear!" She clafps the vanquifh'd to her breaft ; Thou wilt not pierce them there ?

-----Thus vanish BRITAIN's foes From her confuming eye ! But rich be the reward of Those Who conquer,----Those who die ! O'erfhadowing laurels deck The living HERO's brows: But lovelier wreaths entwine his neck, --His children and his spouse!

Exulting o'er his lot, The dangers he has braved ; He clafps the dear ones, hails the cot, Which his own valour faved.

-----DAUGHTERS OF ALBION! weep; On this triumphant plain, Your fathers, hufbands, brethren fleep, For you and freedom flain.

O gently clofe the eye That loved to look on yon ; O feal the lip, whofe earlieft figh, Whofe lateft breath was true : With knots of fweeteft flowers Their winding fheet perfume ; And wash their wounds with true-love showers, And drefs them for the tomb :

For beautiful in death The WARRIOR's corfe appears, Embalm'd by fond AFFECTION's breath, And bathed in WOMAN's tears.

----Give me the death of Thofe Who for their country die; And O be mine like their repofe When cold and low they lie!

Their lovelieft mother-earth Enfhrines the fallen brave, In her fweet lap who gave them birth They find their tranquil grave.

THE VIGIL OF ST. MARK.

RETURNING from their evening walk, On yonder ancient ftyle, In fweet, romantic, tender talk, Two lovers paufed awhile :---

EDMUND, the monarch of the dale, All-confcious of his powers; ELLA, the lily of the vale, The role of AUBURN's bowers!

In airy LOVE's delightful bands He held her heart in vain ; The Nymph denied her willing hand To HYMEN's awful chain. "Ah! why," faid he, " our blifs delay!
" Mine ELLA! why fo cold?
" Thofe who but love from day to day, From day to day grow old.

" The bounding arrow cleaves the fky, " Nor leaves a trace behind; " And fingle lives like arrows fly,

"-They vanish thro' the wind,

- " In Wedlock's fweet endearing lot " Let us improve the fcene,
- " That fome may be, when we are not, " To tell—that we have been."

" 'Tis now," replied the village Belle, " Saint Mark's myfterious eve ; " And all that old traditions tell " I tremblingly believe :---

THE VIGIL OF ST. MARK. 139

" How, when the midnight fignal tolls,

" Along the church-yard green,

- " A mournful train of fenteneed fouls " In winding fheets are feen !
- "The ghofts of all, whom DEATH fhall doom "Within the coming year,

" In pale procession walk the gloom,

"Amid the filence drear!

" If EDMUND, bold in confeious might,

" By love feverely tried,

" Can brave the terrors of to-night,

" ELLA will be his bride."

She ipake,—and, like the nimble fawn, From EDMUND's prefence fied: He fought, acrofs the rural lawn,

The dwelling of the dead !

140 THE VIGIL OF ST. MARK.

That filent, folemn, fimple fpot,

The mouldering realm of peace, Where human paffions are forgot !

Where human follies ceafe!

The gliding moon, through heaven ferene, Purfued her tranquil way, And fhed o'er all the fleeping fcene A foft nocturnal day.

With fwelling heart and eager feet,

Young EDMUND gain'd the church, And chofe his folitary feat

Within the dreadful porch.

Thick, threatening clouds, affembling foon,

Their dragon-wings difplay'd ; Eclipfed the flow-retiring moon,

And quench'd the flars in fhade.

Amid the deep abyfs of gloom No ray of beauty fmiled, Save, gliftening o'er fome haunted tomb, The glow-worm's luftre wild.

The village watch-dogs bay'd around, The long grafs whiftled drear, The fteeple trembled to the ground, Even EDMUND quaked with fear.

All on a fudden died the blaft, Dumb horror chill'd the air, While NATURE feem'd to paufe aghaft, In uttermoft defpair.

-Twelve times the midnight herald toll'd As oft did EDMUND flart ; For every flroke fell dead and cold Upon his fainting heart.

142 THE VIGIL OF ST. MARK.

Then glaring through the ghaftly gloom, Along the church-yard green, The deftin'd victims of the tomb In winding fheets were feen.

In that pale moment EDMUND flood, Sick with fevere furprife; While creeping horror drank his blood, And fix'd his flinty eyes.

He faw the fecrets of the grave! He faw the face of DEATH ! No pitying power appear'd to fave---He gafp'd away his breath !

Yet still the scene his foul beguiled, And every spectre cast A look, unutterably wild, On EDMUND, as they pass?

THE VIGIL OF ST. MARK. 143

All on the ground entranced he lay ; At length the vision broke ! ---When, lo !---a kiss as cold as clay, The flumbering Youth awoke.

That moment, ftreaming through a cloud,

The fudden moon difplay'd, Robed in a melancholy fhroud,

The image of a maid.

Her dufky veil afide the threw, And thew'd a face moft fair; ---To clafp his ELLA--EDMUND flew, And clipt the empty air !

"Ha! who art thou !"--His check grew pale;
A well-known voice replied,
"ELLA, the lily of the vale !
"ELLA--thy defin'd bride !"

To win his neck, her airy arms The pallid phantom fpread; Recoiling from her blafted charms, The' affrighted lover fled.

To fhun the vifionary maid His fpeed outfiript the wind; But,—though unfeen to move,—the fhade Was evermore behind !

So DEATH's unerring arrows glide, Yet feem fufpended ftill; Nor paufe, nor fhrink, nor turn afide, But fmite, fubdue and kill.

O'er many a mountain, moor and vale, On that tremendous night, The Ghoft of ELLA, wild and pale, Purfued her Lover's flight.

THE VIGIL OF ST. MARK. 145

But when the dawn began to gleam, Ere yet the morning fhone, She vanifh'd like a nightmare-dream, And EDMUND flood alone.

Three days, bewilder'd and forlorn, He fought his home in vain; At length he hail'd the hoary thorn, That crown'd his native plain.

Twas evening :—all the air was balm, The heavens ferenely clear ;
When the foft mufic of a pfalm Came penfive o'er his ear.

Then funk his heart ;—a ftrange furmife Made all his blood run cold : He flew,—a funeral met his eyes ; He paufed,—a death-bell toll'd.

140 THE VIGIL OF ST. MARE.

"'Tis fhe !'tis fhe !"-He burft away ; And bending o'er the fpot, Where all that once was ELLA lay, He all befide forgot !

A maniac now, in dumb defpair, With love-bewilder'd mien, He wanders, weeps and watches there, Among the hillocks green.

And every Eve of pale ST. MARK,

As village hinds relate, He walks with ELLA in the dark, And reads the rolls of Fate !

HANNAH.

Ar fond fixteen my roving heart Was pierced by Love's delightful dart: Keen transport throb'd thro' every vein, —I never felt fo fweet a pain !

Where circling woods embower'd the glade, I met the dear romantic maid : I ftole her hand,—it fhrunk;—but no ! I would not: let my captive go.

With all the fervency of youth, While paffion told the tale of truth, I mark'd my HANNAH's downcaft eye, 'Twas kind, but beautifully fhy.

WANNAH.

Not with a warmer, purer ray, The Sun, enamour'd, wooes young May; Nor May, with fofter maiden grace, Turns from the fun her blufhing face.

But, fwifter than the frighted dove, Fled the gay morning of my love: Ah ! that fo bright a morn, fo foon, Should vanifh in fo dark a noon !

The angel of affliction role, And in his grafp a thousand woes; He pour'd his vial on my head, And all the heaven of rapture fied.

Yet, in the glory of my pride, I ftood,—and all his wrath defied; I ftood,—though whirlwinds fhook my brain, And lightnings cleft my foul in twain.

HANNAH.

I fhun'd my nymph ;---and knew not why I durft not meet her gentle eye; I fhun'd her,---for I could not bear To marry her to my defpair.

Yet, fick at heart with hope delay'd, Oft the dear image of that maid Glanced, like the rainbow, o'er my mind; And promifed happiness behind.

The form blew o'er, and in my breaft The halcyon peace rebuilt her neft; The form blew o'er, and clear and mild The fea of youth and pleafure fmiled.

'Twas on the merry morn of May, To HANNAH's cot I took my way; My eager hopes were on the wing, Like fwallows fporting in the fpring.

HANNAH.

Then as I climb'd the mountains o'er, I lived my wooing days once more : And fancy fketch'd my married lot, My wife, my children and my cot !

I faw the village fteeple rife,---My foul fprang, fparkling, in my eyes; The rural bells rang fweet and clear,---My fond heart liften'd in mine ear.

I reach'd the hamlet :--all was gay ; I love a ruftic holiday ! I met a wedding,--ftep'd afide ; It pafs'd ;--my HANNAH was the bride !

There is a grief that cannot feel;
It leaves a wound that will not heal;
My heart grew cold, —it felt not then;
When shall it cease to feel again ?

A FIELD FLOWER;

ON FINDING ONE IN FULL BLOOM ON CHRISTMAS DAY 1803.

THERE is a flower, a little flower, With filver creft and golden eye, That welcomes every changing hour, And weathers every fky.

The prouder Beauties of the field, In gay but quick fucceffion fhine, Race after race their honours yield, They flourifh and decline.

But this fmall flower, to Nature dear,
While moons and flars their courles rufa,
Wreathes the whole circle of the year,
Companion of the fan,

152 A FIELD FLOWER.

It finites upon the lap of May, To fultry August spreads its charms, Lights pale October on his way, And twines December's arms.

The purple heath, and golden broom, On moory mountains catch the gale, O'er lawns the lily fheds perfume, The violet in the vale.

But this bold floweret climbs the hill, Hides in the foreft, haunts the glen, Plays on the margin of the rill, Peeps round the fox's den.

Within the garden's cultured round, It fhares the fweet carnation's bed; And blooms on confectated ground In honour of the dead.

A FIELD FLOWER.

The lambkin crops its crimfon gem, The wild-bee murmurs on its breaft, The blue-fly bends its penfile ftem, Light o'er the fky-lark's neft.

'Tis FLORA's page:——In every place, In every feafon, freth and fair, It opens with perennial grace, And bloffoms every where.

On wafte and woodland, rock and plain, Its humble buds unheeded rife; The Rofe has but a fummer-reign, The DAISY never dies.

THE SNOW-DROP.

WINTER ! retire, Thy reign is paft ; Hoary Sire! Yield the sceptre of thy sway, Sound thy trumpet in the blaft, And call thy florms away; Winter ! retire; Wherefore do thy wheels delay? Mount the chariot of thine ire, And quit the realms of day; On thy flate Whirlwinds wait; And blood-flot meteors field thee light;

THE SNOW-BLOZ.

Hence to dreary arctic regions, Summon thy terrific legions; Hence to caves of northern night Speed thy flight.

From halcyon feas

And purer fkies,

O fouthern breeze!

Awake, arife:

Breath of heaven ! benignly blow,

Melt the fnow ;

Breath of heaven ! unchain the floods,

Warm the woods,

And make the mountains flow.

Aufpicious to the Mule's prayer,

The freshening gale

Embalms the vale,

And breathes enchantment thro' the air :

On its wing

Floats the Spring,

With glowing eye, and golden hair: Dark before her Angel-form She drives the Demon of the ftorm, Like Gladnefs chafing Care.

Winter's gloomy night withdrawn, Lo! the young romantic Hours Search the hill, the dale, the lawn, To behold the SNOW-DROP white Start to light, And fhine in FLORA's defart bowers, Beneath the vernal dawn, The Morning Star of Flowers !-

O welcome to our Ifle, Thou Meffenger of Peace !

THE SNOW-DROP.

At whole bewitching fmile The embattled tempefts ceafe : Emblem of Innocence and Truth !. Firstborn of Nature's womb, When firong in renovated youth, She burfts from Winter's tomb ; Thy Parent's eye hath fhed A precious dew-drop on thine head, Frail as a Mother's tear Upon her infant's face, When ardent hope to tender fear, And anxious love, gives place. But lo ! the dew-drop falls away, The fun falutes thee with a ray, Warm as a Mother's kifs Upon her Infant's cheek, When the heart bounds with blifs, And joy that cannot fpeak !

155 THE SHOW-DROP.

-When I meet thee by the way, Like a pretty, fportive child. On the winter-wafted wild. With thy darling breeze at play, Opening to the radiant fky All the fweetness of thine eve: -Or bright with funbeams, fresh with fnowers, O thou Fairy-Osieen of Howers ! Watch thee o'er the plain advance At the head of FLORA's dances Simple SNOW-DROP ! then in thee All thy fifter train I foe: Every brilliant bud that blows, From the blue-bell to the role: All the beauties that appear On the bofom of the Year; All that wreathe the locks of Strings Summer's ardent breath performe,

. THE ENGW-DROP.

Or on the lap of Autumn bloom, --All to thee their tribute bring, Exhale their incenfe at thy fhrine, --Their hues, their odours all are thine ! For while thy humble form I view, The Mufe's keen prophetic fight Brings fair Futurity to light, And Fancy's magic makes the vision true,

-There is a Winter in my foul, The Winter of defpair; Q when fhall Spring its rage controul? When fhall the SNOW-DROP bloffom there? Cold gleams of comfort fometimes dart A dawn of glory on my heart, But quickly pafs away : Thus Northern-lights the gloom adorn, And give the promife of a morn, That never turns to day!

· 160 THE SNOW-DROP.

-But hark! methinks I hear

A fmall ftill whifper in mine car;

"Rafh Youth! repent,

" Afflictions from above,

" Are Angels fent

" On embaffies of love.

"A fiery Legion, at thy birth,

" Of chaftening Woes were given,

" To pluck thy flowers of Hope from earth,

" And plant them high

"O'er yonder iky,

" Transform'd to ftars,-and fix'd in heaven."

WRITTEN AT SCARBOROUGH, IN THE SUMMER OF 1805.

ALL hail to the ruins,* the rocks and the fhores I Thou wide-rolling OCEAN, all hail ! Now brilliant with fun-beams, and dimpled with oars, Now dark with the frefh-blowing gale, While foft o'er thy bofom the cloud-fhadows fails

And the filver-wing'd fea-fowl on high,

Like meteors befpangle the fky,

Or dive in the gulph, or triumphantly ride,

Like foam on the furges, the fwans of the tide.

* Scarboro' Cafile.

From the tumult and fmoke of the city fet free,
With eager and awful delight,
From the creft of the mountain I gaze upon thee;
I gaze, — and am changed at the fight;
For mine eye is illumined, my Genius takes flight,
My foul, like the fun, with a glance
Embraces the boundle's expanse,
And moves on thy waters, wherever they roll,
Prom the day-darting zone to the night-brooding pole.

ź

My Spirit defcends where the day-fpring is born, Where the billows are rubies on fire, And the breezes that rock the light cradle of morn Are fweet as the Phœnix's pyre: O regions of beauty, of love, and defire ! O gardens of Eden ! in vain Placed far on the fathomlefs main,

162

Where Nature with Innocence dwelt in her youth, When pure was her heart, and unbroken her truth.

But now the fair rivers of Paradife wind Through countries and kingdoms o'erthrown; Where the Giant of tyranny crushes mankind, Where he reigns,—and will foon reign alone, For wide and more wide o'er the fun-beaming zone,

He firetches his hundred-fold arms, Defpoiling, deftroying its charms; Beneath his broad footftep the Ganges is dry, And the mountains recoil from the flafh of his eye.

Thus the pefillent Uppas, the hydra of trees, Its boughs o'er the wildernefs fpreads, And with livid contagion polluting the breeze Its mildewing influence fheds; The birds on the wing, and the flowers in their beds,

Are flain by its venomous breath,
That darkens the noon-day with death,
And pale ghofts of Travellers wander around,
While their mouldering fkeletons whiten the ground.

Ah! why hath JEHOVAH, in forming the world, With the waters divided the land, His ramparts of rocks round the continent hurl'd, And cradled the deep in his hand, ISMAN may transgress his eternal command; And leap o'er the bounds of his birth To ravage the uttermost earth, And violate nations and realms that should be Distinct as the billows, yet one as the sea !

THE OCEAN. 165.

There are, gloomy OCEAN ! a brotherlefs clan, Who traverfe thy banifhing waves, The poor difinherited outcafts of man, Whom Avarice coins into flaves ; From the homes of their kindred, their forefathers' graves, Love, friendfhip, and conjugal blifs, They are dragg'd on the hoary abyfs;

The fhark hears their fhricks, and afcending to day,

Demands of the spoiler his share of the prey.

Then joy to the tempeft that whelms them beneath,

And makes their defiruction its fport ! But woe to the winds that propitioully breathe, And waft them in fafety to port ! Where the vultures and vampires of Mammon refort ; Where Europe exultingly drains Her cordials from Africa's veins; Where the image of God is accounted as bafe, And the image of Cæfar fet up in its place!

The hour is approaching,—a terrible hour ! And Vengeance is bending her bow ; Already the clouds of the hurricane lour, And the rock-rending whirlwinds blow ; Back rolls the huge Ocean,—Hell opens below ; The floods return headlong,—they fweep The flave-cultur'd lands to the deep ; In a moment entomb'd in the horrible void, By their Maker Himfelf in his anger deftroy'd.

Shall this be the fate of the cane-planted illes,More lovely than clouds in the weft,When the fun o'er the ocean defcending in fmiles.Sinks foftly and fweetly to reft ?

-NO!-Father of Mercy ! befriend the oppreft; At the voice of thy gospel of peace, May the forrows of Africa cease ; And the flave and his master devoutly unite To walk in thy freedom, and dwell in thy light !

As homeward my weary-wing'd Fancy extends Her ftar-lighted course through the skies, High over the mighty Atlantic ascends, And turns upon Europe her eyes; Ah me 1 what new prospects, new horrors arise ! I see the war-tempested shood All foaming, and panting with blood; The panic-struck Ocean in agony roars, ' Rebounds from the battle, and flies to his shores.

For BRITANNIA is wielding her trident to-days

Confuming her foes in her ire,

And hurling her thunder with abfolute fway

From her wave-ruling chariots of fire :

-She triumphs ;- the winds and the waters confpire

To fpread her invincible name;

The univerfe rings with her fame ;

-But the cries of the fatherless mix with her praise, And the tears of the widow are shed on her bays }

O Britain! dear Britain! the land of my birth;

·O Ifle, most enchantingly fair !

Thou Pearl of the Occan! Thou Gem of the Earth!

O my Mother ! my Mother ! beware ;

For wealth is a phantom, and empire a fnare a

O let not thy birth-right be fold For reprobate glory and gold : Thy foreign dominions like wild graftings fhoot, They weigh down thy trunk,-they will tear up thy root :--

The root of thine OAK, O my Country ! that stands Rock-planted, and flourishing free; Its branches are stretch'd over far-distant lands, And its shadow eclipses the sea: The blood of our Ancestors nourish'd the tree; From their tombs, from their ashes it sprung; Its boughs with their trophies are hung; Their spirit dwells in it :---and hark ! for it spoke; The voice of our Fathers assends from their oak.

"Ye Britons ! who dwell where we conquer'd of old, Who inherit our battle-field graves ;

THE OCEAN.

Though poor were your Fathers,—gigantic and bold, We were not, we would not be flaves; But firm as our rocks, and as free as our waves, The fpears of the Romans we broke, We never ftoop'd under their yoke; In the fhipwreck of nations we ftood up alone, '--The workd was great CÆSAR'S—but Britain our own.

" For ages and ages, with barbarous foes, The Saxon, Norwegian and Gaul, We wreftled, were foil'd, were caft down, but we

, With new vigour, new life from each fall;

By all we were conquer'd :-- WE CONQUER'E

THEM ALL!

- The cruel, the cannibal mind,

We foften'd, fubdued and refined ;

Bears, wolves, and fea-monsters they rush'd from their den;

We taught them, we tamed them, we turn'd them to men.

"Love led the wild hordes in his flower-woven bands, The tendereft, the ftrongeft of chains! Love married our hearts, he united our hands, And mingled the blood in our veins; One race we became :—on the mountains and plains

Where the wounds of our country were closed, The Ark of Religion reposed,

The unquenchable Altar of Liberty blazed,

And the Temple of Juffice in Mercy was raifed.

" Ark, Altar and Temple we left with our breat." To our children, a facred bequeft!

O guard them, O keep them, in life and in death : So the fhades of your Fathers fhall reft,

And your spirits with ours be in paradile bleft :

-Let Ambition, the fin of the Brave,

And Avarice, the foul of a Slave,

No longer feduce your affections to roam

From Liberty, Justice, Religion, AT HOME !"

THE COMMON LOT.

ONCE in the flight of ages paft, There lived a Man:—and WHO was He? —Mortal! howe'er thy lot be caft, That Man refembled Thee.

Unknown the region of his birth, The land in which he died unknown; His name hath perish'd from the earth, This truth furvives alone :--

That joy and grief, and hope and fear, Alternate triumph'd in his breaft ; His blifs and woe,—a finile, a tear ! —Oblivion hides the reft. The bounding pulfe, the languid limb, The changing fpirits' rife and fall; We know that these were felt by him, For these are felt by all.

He fuffer'd,—but his pangs are o'er ; Enjoy'd,—but his delights are fled ; Had friends,—his friends are now no more ; And foes,—his foes are dead.

He loved,—but whom he loved the grave Hath loft in its unconfcious womb : O fhe was fair !—but nought could fave Her beauty from the tomb.

The rolling feafons, day and night, Sun, moon and ftars, the earth and main, Erewhile his portion, life and light, To him exift in vain.

THE COMMON LOT.

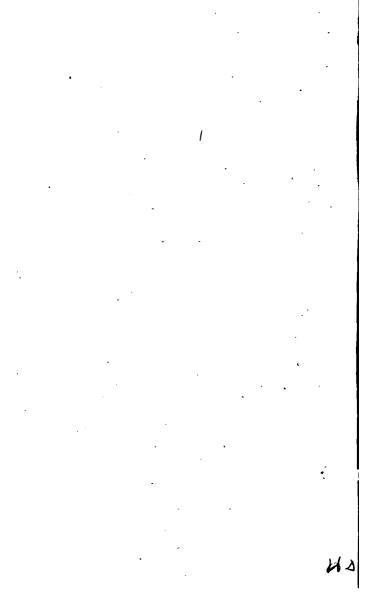

He faw whatever thou haft feen, Encounter'd all that troubles thee; He was—whatever thou haft been; He is—what thou fhalt be.

The clouds and lunbeams, o'er his eye, That once their fhades and glory threw, Have left in yonder filent fky, No veflige where they flew.

The annals of the human race, Their ruins, fince the world began, Of HIM afford no other trace Than this,—THERE LIVED A MAN!

THE END.
